

ENA 2805, F16a

JISL
ENA
2805
16

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Hebrew, on a fragment of papyrus or parchment. The text is arranged in approximately 12 horizontal lines. The script is dense and cursive. There are several dark, irregular spots on the fragment, possibly due to ink or damage. The fragment is mounted on a dark background.

ENA 2805, f. 16 a verso

The image shows a fragment of an ancient Hebrew scroll, likely from the Dead Sea Scrolls. The text is written in a cursive script, characteristic of the late Second Temple period. The fragment is divided into two columns of text by a vertical crease. The left column contains approximately 12 lines of text, while the right column contains approximately 10 lines. The text is heavily damaged, with several large, irregular holes and significant staining, particularly in the center and right-hand side. The fragment is set against a black background, which highlights its irregular shape and the texture of the parchment or papyrus. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but severely damaged piece of ancient literature.